From United Nations “Agenda for Development”

Development is achieving a higher quality of life for all people.

Economic development, social development, and environmental protection are interdependent, mutually reinforcing components of this.

Sustained, broad-based economic growth is essential to improve standards of living by eradicating hunger, poverty, disease, and illiteracy, and providing adequate shelter and secure employment.

Democracy, human rights, fundamental freedoms, transparent and accountable governance, effective participation by civil society, and empowerment and participation of women are also essential.
